

The Puppet Masters

Description

The Puppet Masters Intro to the Series

We get caught up in the little stuff — who's president, how it happened, who to blame. We fixate on the face in front of the curtain — the clown or the statesman — but rarely ask who's pulling the strings behind them.

We toss around vague culprits: "corporate America," "the global elite," "one world government." But I don't think it's the oligarchs or the CEOs. I believe it's the idealists — the ones who believe so deeply in their vision that they've become the puppet masters, manipulating outcomes in the name of the greater good.

So in this arena called politics, I'll try to pull back the curtain. To shine some light on the power brokers we don't elect, the movements we don't see coming, and the hands guiding the show. I'll offer some insight, some opinion — but the real mysteries? Those are yours to solve.

Because in the end, maybe the only real truth... is your truth.

RFK Jr.'s rhetoric around detoxing children, rejecting vaccines, and elevating "natural immunity" taps into those old, unscientific veins — and when implemented from a position of power, they do carry population-level consequences.

Democrats overwhelmingly favor the popular vote. Republicans strongly prefer the Electoral College. Independents lean toward the popular vote but are more divided. Overall, most Americans favor switching to a popular vote system.

In essence, a fact-checker's loyalty is to the truth, wherever it may lead. For someone simply seeking to support their own views, their loyalty lies with their pre-existing beliefs.
